COMERICA BANK ROBBED

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DESPITE QUICK action by a sharp-eyed bank clerk and a two-minute response time, police were unable to catch the fleet-footed man who robbed Comerica Bank at Dolores and Seventh around 1:20 p.m. May 21.

"A lone, white male suspect entered the bank, walked directly to the teller window and demanded hundreds and fifties," said CPD Lieutenant Pete Poitras. "He simulated a weapon, the teller complied with his wishes and he turned and left the bank."

Carmel Police Special Response Team member Tim Meroney waited with his shotgun at the ready outside the Comerica Bank shortly after it was robbed May 21, but the suspect had already fled the scene.

Bear's death prompts review of Fish and Game methods

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WILDLIFE OFFICIALS at the California Department of Fish and Game will consider changing procedures for dealing with bears in urban areas after the death of a young black bear that wandered into downtown Carmel this week.

With dozens of Carmel residents looking on, the 250-pound bear fell from a 70-foot pine tree on Ocean Avenue after being hit in the right leg with a tranquilizer dart fired by

See BEAR page 12A

The bear showed little concern while it waited more than three hours in a tall Monterey pine on Ocean Avenue. Wildlife officials decided they couldn't wait to see if it would come down on its own.

Before it ran down Ocean Avenue and scurried up a Monterey pine, the black bear wandered through the streets of Carmel, passing the Lobos Lodge (above.)

After being struck in the right hind leg with a tranquilizer dart, the bear lost its grip and plunged to the ground.

PB Co. boss nets $13 million in quick real estate deal

■ 17 Mile Drive home sale sets all-time record at $28 million

By PAUL MILLER

A SHINGLED home overlooking Stillwater Cove was sold Feb. 16 to a Silicon Valley real estate partnership for $28 million, setting a new record price for a home sale in Pebble Beach.

The seller, Pebble Beach Co. Chief Executive Officer William Perocchi, purchased the home just two days before for $15 million — netting him a sudden, incredible profit of $13 million, thanks to the phenomenal run-up in property values after he signed an option in April 2000 to purchase the property at the $15 million price.

"When I signed the option agreement last year, I thought there was no way I'd ever buy the house at that price," said Perocchi, who was brought in to run the P.B. Co. after it was acquired in 1999 by a group headed by Peter Ueberroth and Clint Eastwood. "Of course, I also had no way to foresee what would happen to home values on 17 Mile Drive."

Perocchi said confidentiality agreements prevented him

See PEROCCHI page 13A

Sparkling like a jewel on a hillside above Stillwater Cove, the home (center) sold by P.B. CEO Bill Perocchi in February for $28 million will probably have a dramatic effect on the value of other properties near The Lodge.

Electricity crisis may sink desal

By PAUL MILLER

THE CALIFORNIA Public Utilities Commission — the same group grappling with the state's electricity crisis — is still recommending a desalination plant on the shores of Monterey Bay as a key component of a solution to the Peninsula's perpetual water shortage.

In a report last week updating the collection of water supply options known as Plan B, the PUC said a desal plant could produce 3,000 acre-feet of drinking water per year — a new supply that would be particularly useful, the commission said, during the dry summer months when overpumping of the Carmel River causes the most environmental damage.

But a brief note in the report admitted desal sucks up a huge amount of electricity turning sea water into fresh — more than 2,000 megawatts per day — when the plant is operating. That's enough electricity for 2,000 homes, which would instead go to desal during the very season the state's electricity grid can least afford it.

"I have very serious concerns about desal as a project that can actually be delivered," said water board chairman Dave Potter. The electricity shortage is just one major concern about desal, he said.

"Brine being discharged into the marine sanctuary is another big problem," according to Potter.

He also expressed doubts about several other Plan B

After four decades, Oxbridge to close its doors

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL HABERDASHER Oxbridge Men's Clothing — which had customers lined up outside Tuesday for the first day of a big going-out-of-business sale — will close its doors for good this summer, according to Ali Voskay, whose family owns the store.

His father, Hilmi Voskay, opened Oxbridge 38 years ago.

"A lot of little towns have lost their local haberdasher because the margins are not there," said the younger Voskay, who has worked at Oxbridge since he was 12 years old. "Nordstrom is the demise of many a little shop like ours, but we held it off as long as we could."

A customer who regularly visited Carmel long before moving here eight years ago lamented the passing of the shop at the corner of Dolores and Sixth.

"On vacations here my husband always stocked up on his wardrobe at Oxbridge because the style suited his tastes," she said.

"We are thankful to our customers who came to our store for so long," Voskay said.

He does not blame greedy landlords seeking high rents, though the sale of the building that houses Oxbridge and the subsequent rent increase did play a role in the decision to close the store.

"Their offer wasn't conducive to the numbers we can actually do," he said, declining to specify what the offer was.

While the building had been in the same family for more than 100 years, the new purchasers aren't enjoying the luxury of a paid-off mortgage, according to Voskay.

County reconsiders Carmel Valley Road safety measures

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MONTEREY COUNTY decided to reassess the intersection of Via Mallorca and Carmel Valley Road after another fatal accident — in which 90-year-old Hacienda Carmel resident Virginia Land turned left onto Carmel Valley Road in front of an eastbound Chevy Blazer May 19 — prompted renewed calls for a stoplight in the area.

Hacienda Carmel has 300 residents "all of whom fear for their lives each time they leave the intersection — it's the only egress we have," said Andrew Bonfield, chair of Hacienda Carmel's traffic safety committee. "We've had five dead in 12 months."

Virginia Land

Milt Kegley of nearby Del Mesa Carmel asked the county to also take into account the hundreds of older residents across the road from Via Mallorca when making a decision.

"We ask you to consider the solution that will protect the greatest number of citizens," he said, suggesting that a frontage road leading to a full stoplight could be the solution.

Supervisor Dave Potter asked Public Works Director Lew Bauman to look into whether a previously unwarranted stoplight is now appropriate at the intersection, and to get funds to move the project forward.

The county has already installed flashing beacons and larger warning signs near the intersection, and is in the process of adding a 1,000-foot acceleration lane onto westbound Carmel Valley Road, Bauman said.

A half or full signal may be an option, but the county won't know until public works examines the facts and makes a recommendation early next month, Bauman said.

"Of course traffic safety depends on the roadway and the driver," he told The Pine Cone, adding that his department will consider accident history — the number and nature of accidents in the last 12 months that could have been mitigated by a traffic signal — roadway geometry, traffic flow and volume, and the effectiveness of other improvements, and then devise remedies.

Adding a traffic signal has its benefits and drawbacks, according to Bauman.

"State guidelines suggest trying less restrictive remedies, and that's precisely what we did," he said. "What we're obliged to weigh now is the new accident data and the severity."

While a light may reduce right-angle accidents like the one that killed Land, it could increase the number of rear-enders and could cause traffic congestion, he said.

"If it were an absolutely full-proof cure-all, there wouldn't be as much concern about

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man contacted and warned for conducting a business, sand sculpturing at the beach for monetary gain. He was advised to cease and desist from any further business activity without a proper license or authorization from the city or he will be cited. He concurred and destroyed his creation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a suspicious subject in a store, possibly under the influence. Contacted the subject, who said he is taking prescribed medication for depression and anxiety and may have taken too much. Courtesy transport provided to his residence.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Carmel resident arrested at San Carlos and Eighth for resisting officers and being drunk in public.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Resident reported a man yelling outside his San Carlos home. Contacted the subject, who had been drinking, and counseled him about staying inside. He said he would comply.

Pebble Beach: Security reported finding a campfire site and a deceased cat on Haul Road near Holman Highway.

Carmel Valley: Lilac Road resident reported an unknown male took four Polaroid pictures of his two daughters and a friend three weeks ago.

Big Sur: Two victims were attacked and beaten by a man on southbound Highway 1 at Soberanes Point.

Carmel Valley: Unknown suspect(s) forced entry into the Rancho Cañada maintenance shop office and took a VCR.

Big Sur: Palo Alto residents interrupted a burglary of their vehicle in Lafler Canyon. The suspect smashed a window with a hammer and was confronted by one of the victims. The suspect, driving a stolen Jaguar from Arizona, was observed by CHP Helo and stopped after a high-speed chase in San Luis Obispo County. The suspect was lodged in San Luis Obispo County Jail.

MONDAY, MAY 14

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of $200 in vandalism to a vehicle parked at Santa Lucia and Monte Verde.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: General patrol of Carmel Beach. Located a deceased seal on the beach north of Pescadero Canyon in the county area. Requested dispatch notify the appropriate agency. No CMC violation observed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject contacted at the Carmel Beach parking lot after he was observed urinating next to a pine tree in an attempt to hide his actions from public view. He was advised that although his attempts to hide his actions were honorable, he was not very successful, and it was pointed out that the public restrooms were only a few hundred feet away. He agreed to use

Friends, family mourn death of troubled CHS graduate

Saturday memorial scheduled

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE NIGHT Carmel Middle School principal Karl Pallastrini returned from a candlelight vigil for 14-year-old Trevor Principe — who committed suicide by hanging last month — he found his own son hanging from a tree in his Carmel yard. The young man, 22-year-old Kristofer Pallastrini, could not be revived by CPR and was pronounced dead at the scene May 18, yet another victim of suicide.

"I feel so sad, so sorry for the whole family," said sheriffs deputy John Burke, recalling that some of the pain and accusations following the Principe suicide fell on Karl Pallastrini's shoulders as he tried to deal with the grief at school as well as the overwhelming difficulties with his own son's depression.

Kris Pallastrini, being treated for bipolar disorder by Monterey psychiatrist Tom Burchard, was reportedly taking medication for depression. His troubles splashed across the front page of the Monterey Herald April 4 in a report about the SWAT team being held at bay for four hours by the young man, holed up with a rifle in his Hatton Road home. After threatening others and saying he hoped officers would shoot him, Pallastrini finally surrendered and was put under a 72-hour mental health evaluation. The night before, his parents had told police they feared he was suicidal.

The too brief life of Kris Pallastrini will be memorialized May 26 at a service at Bay School. His family asks anyone who wishes to make a donation in his memory to do so to any agency working with bipolar disorder.

Monterey County quarantined to stop sudden oak death

By MARY BROWNFIELD

NEW RESTRICTIONS aimed at stopping the spread of sudden oak death by limiting the export of tree and plant species from seven California counties took effect May 22, but Peninsula business owners doubt the regulations will affect them.

The new rules, issued by the California Department of Food and Agriculture, prohibit moving black oak, coast live oak, Shreve's oak, tanoak, rhododendron (except azaleas), California bay laurel, madrone, huckleberry and arrowwood out of Monterey County unless accompanied by a certificate from the agricultural commissioner that they are free of the disease.

Transportation of the listed plants and trees directly through the regulated areas from outside the seven affected counties, which include Monterey, Marin, Napa, San Mateo, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and Sonoma, is allowed.

"We don't know how sudden oak death is spread, if transmission of plants and trees spreads this disease," said CDFA public affairs director Steve Lyle. "We don't know because we don't have the research findings yet, but if so, then yes, this should be effective. That's why we went ahead and did it."

Lyle said the number of species that host the fungus-like microbe phytophthora that causes sudden oak death continues to rise, and the disease has already killed tens of thousands of trees throughout the state.

"So we wanted to do something that could potentially stop the spread of this disease," Lyle said.

The expansive restrictions include not only live plants but firewood, bark chips, mulch and preserved wreaths, but may not impact many local businesses.

"All the wood pretty much stays local and we don't bring in any wood, so I don't think it would affect us at all," said Tracy Tope of Tope's Tree Service, which also sells firewood. "Most people who do tree work trim and let it season and then sell it locally. You don't make a lot of money on wood anyway, so you don't want to drive too far to pick it up or drop it off."

Ken Griggs, owner of Griggs nurseries in Carmel Valley and Pacific Grove, said he hadn't even heard about the restrictions.

"We don't send anything out, but we get stuff from other areas," he said. "No, it wouldn't affect us — not enough that it would be noticeable."

June Mixers

On June 7, the Carmel Mission Inn is hosting a mega-mixer for local Chambers and has extended an invitation for our members to attend. It's their way of saying "thank you" for the past support they've received from the community, and provides an opportunity to become more familiar with their services. We hope to see you there. (Rio Road-Just east of Highway 1—5:30-7:30pm; Free to CBA Members) RSVP 624-2522

On June 13 our monthly CBA Mixer moves to the High-lands Inn. Ulrich Samietz and his staff will be our hosts. Come and reacquaint yourself with this beautiful facility and the services High-lands Inn has to offer. Who knows, you may want to book that special getaway retreat for yourself while you are there. (Highway 1-South of Carmel—5-7PM; Members $5, Non-Members $10)

On June 21 we will have a Ribbon Cutting Mixer at Malm Luggage in Carmel Plaza. Please join us for this event, welcome our new member to the Carmel business community, and take a look at the wonderful items they have to offer. (Carmel Plaza—5-7pm; Free to CBA Members)

Public Relations Firm Hard At Work

Working with Murphy O'Brien, we have been able to secure several exciting articles and productions marketing Carmel as a destination. In early May, we had a TV crew in town from Animal Planet, filming two separate segments for a new show debuting in the fall — "Hollywood Unleashed" — featuring celebrities and their pets. The segments featured Cypress Inn, Fideaux, Forge in the Forest, Wayside Inn, Mayor Sue McCloud, Connie Coleman, and Carmel Beach. Next month, we have a visit from the editor of Orange Coast Magazine scheduled, who will focus on accommodations, restaurants, and points of interest. The editor from Coast Magazine also has a visit scheduled next month, featuring Carmel as a weekend get-away.

Kiosk Open For Business

CBA staff has been sprucing up the Visitor Kiosk at Carmel Plaza. It's spic and span, stocked, and ready to start helping visitors. The Kiosk will be open Wednesday through Sunday, 11:00 - 5:00, Memorial Day Weekend (5/25) through Labor Day (9/3).

Carmel Heritage rewards individual efforts to enhance village

By SISSI MALEKI

REWARDING CARMEL residents for enhancing their old homes is Carmel Heritage Society's novel approach to helping to maintain Carmel's character.

The program was presented to the Carmel City Council April 3 by Alice Englander, one of the society's officials

Starting next January, nominations of specific homes will be assessed to determine which ones have done the best job of helping preserve the spirit of Carmel.

"When the dust settles, we'll have ordinances for what's historic," said board president Jim Gallagher. "But until they decide what 'historic' means, this will be a non-political way to celebrate people's accomplishments to protect Carmel's character."

He qualified that by adding, wryly, "Though it's pretty hard to do anything around here without having it become political!"

The program was Englander's brainchild.

"It should be an inspiration to others and make people feel appreciated," she said.

And, as councilwoman Paula Hazdovac said, "When was the last time you got anyone to do anything by forcing them and pointing out the negative?"

As for the qualifying types of improvement, the society is keeping it simple.

Examples could include gardens, gates, walls, commercial property, and so on. The main question one should ask is: "Is it contributing to my life?"

Gallagher used the mission of Carmel Heritage as a further way to explain.

"The society is people-oriented," he said. "It's not structures that make Carmel — it's the people."

Nominations will be accepted beginning next January, with the awards being announced in May 2002.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Are you a walker who's wondering about your workout? Should you stick to flat terrain or challenge yourself with gentle slopes? Both methods are effective ways of getting in shape. By combining flat and inclined surfaces, you are getting varied workout which is often a better way to keep you motivated. With knee or back injuries, a flat surface is preferable, likewise if you are interested in increasing your speed. If the workout goal is to increase your heart rate, you may want to try a couple of hills.

At 85 years old, Horace Hagedorn still knows a thing or two about beautiful lawns. As the inventor of Miracle-Gro fertilizer, Hagedorn recently toured the White House lawn and said "It's gone to the dogs." He said the bald patches and yellow spots on the First Family's lawn are there as a result of their pets—Buddy the dog and Socks the cat— responding to the calls of nature.

PALLASTRINI

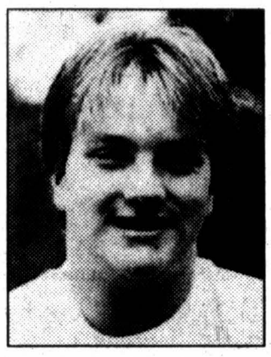
Kris Pallastrini played football at Carmel High and was sports editor of the school newspaper, The Sandpiper. But his forte was humor, which he displayed in a weekly column called "Adventures with Kris" in 1996, according to his journalism teacher, Dale DePalatis



Kris Pallastrini

"I loved him; he was just a great kid," DePalatis said "If I had a problem — like a kid giving me lip or something — Kris would go up and grab them and say, 'Let's all love each other!'"

He was always upbeat, trying to enjoy life and make others laugh, DePalatis said, never displaying any mood swings or signs of depression. But a year ago, DePalatis saw Pallastrini again and he seemed troubled. "I asked him what was going on with him, but he didn't tell me."

Others at the school agreed the Principe suicide may have pushed Pallastrini over the edge, convincing him to take his own life in the same way. They hope that any other student who needs help will seek it by calling the Senior and Team Outreach Project (STOP) at the toll-free number 1-877-ONE LIFE, or counselors at the schools.

"It's unbearably sad to watch these wonderful young people in such despair," said a teacher at Carmel Middle School. "But we just don't know how to help them find hope."

In a poignant message of love to his parents and twin brothers, Kris Pallastrini's 1997 school yearbook dedication read, "To Dad, for letting me live this long. Mom, thanks for all the 'ridge adventures.' Pat, Brett, GOOD LUCK. I don't know what else to say, really. I just hope everyone doesn't end up doing what people have told them to do. Do what you want to do and don't let anyone tell you you can't."

The memorial for Pallastrini begins at 9 a.m. Saturday at the beach down the path from Bay School on Highway 1.

analysis," he said. "But it's a tradeoff, so we're proceeding carefully and at the same time as quickly as we can."

Legislation to add Carmel Valley Road to a state-run double-fine-zone pilot program is also making headway, according to Bauman, and some other jurisdictions want to join.

Caltrans and CHP will compile accident data from troublesome state roads and determine whether the threat of increased fines for speeding actually cuts the accident rate. The amendment would allow other jurisdictions to take part.

If the bill passes and a double-fine zone is installed on Carmel Valley Road, the county would finance new signage and engineering studies, and then work with the state agencies in compiling data and incorporating it into their report.

The bill has already received unanimous approval from a transportation subcommittee, according to Bauman.

"It's moving ahead without any opposition," he said.

components — in particular, a PUC statement than 500 acre-feet of reclaimed water per year can be delivered to the Monterey Peninsula from the Salinas Valley.

"I don't think you're going to see water coming over the hill," Potter said.

Instead, next week's meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board will focus on other small-scale water supply options, including desilting the Los Padres and San Clemente Reservoirs, and the construction of a reservoir on Fort Ord land.

The PUC report also revised an earlier estimate that 1,000 acre-feet could be added to the local water supply through conservation. In the latest report, that number has been cut to nothing.

"Cal-Am and the MPWMD have been operating a water conservation program for many years, and Cal-Am customer per-capita water use is among the lowest in the state," the PUC noted. Also, leaks in the system are continually repaired, but also continually break out in various locations.

"Due to these conditions, the target yield from conservation is zero," the PUC said.

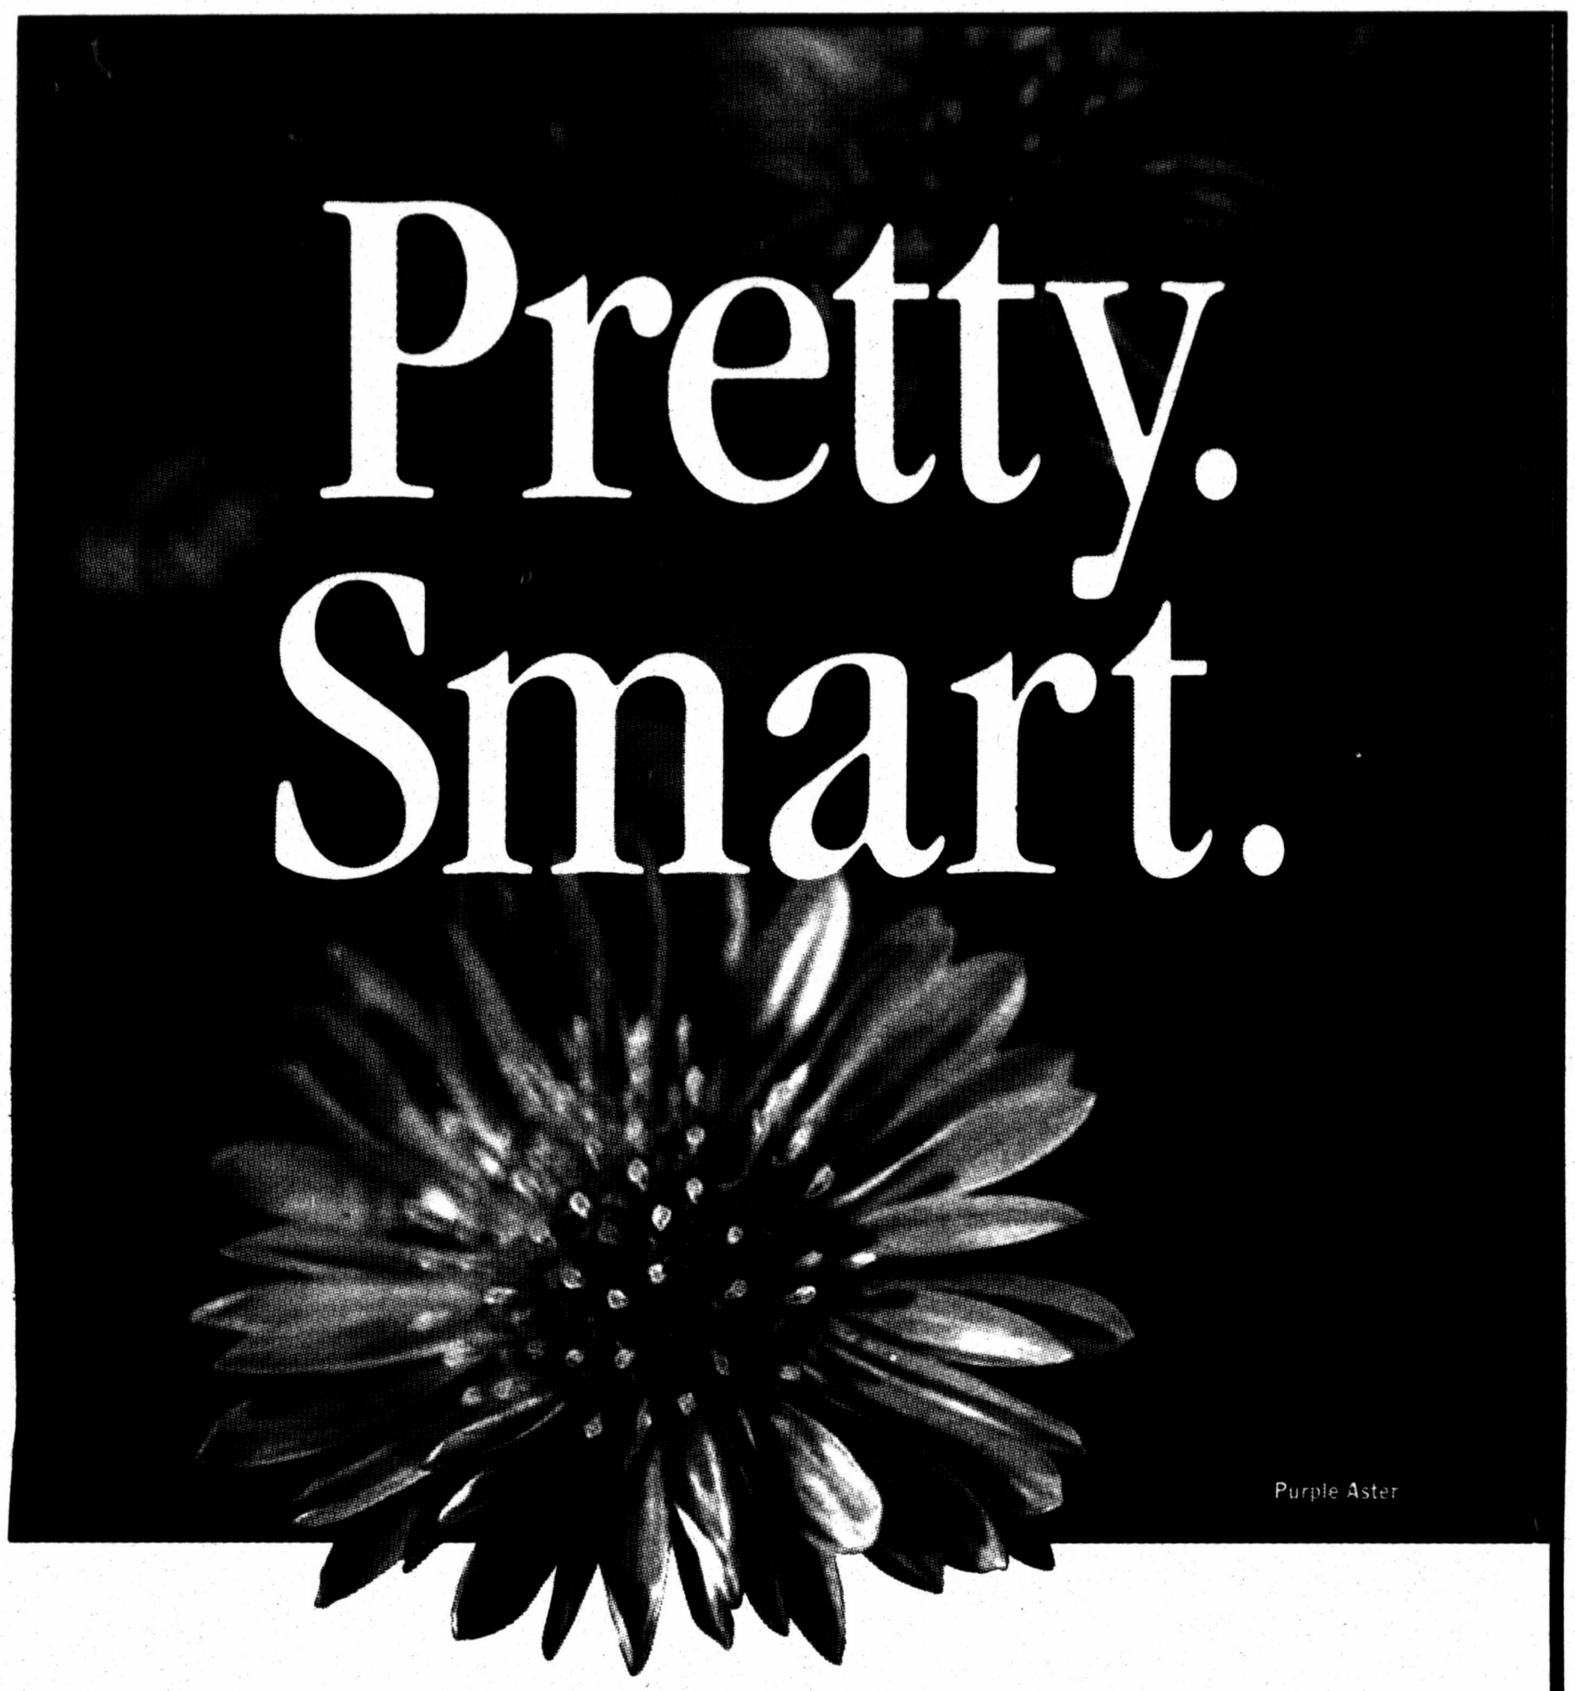
So much silt has built up behind San Clemente Dam, the reservoir holds less than 10 percent of the water is was supposed to. A plan to remove the silt will be discussed at this week's water board meeting.

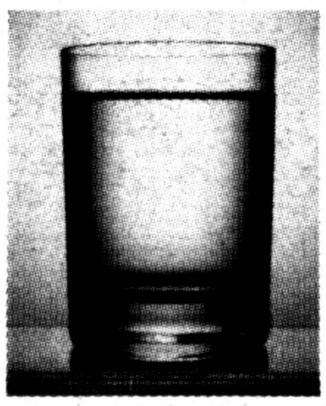


Drought tolerant native plants can make your yard and your wallet more lush.

You can cut your outdoor water use by up to 80 percent with xeriscape – the art and science of landscaping with plants that need little or no water.

Dozens of shrubs, flowers and trees thrive on just a little water every few days. Silverberry, Lilac, Purple Coneflower, Blue Flax, Purple Aster and dozens of other plants thrive on minimal water.

May is Water Awareness Month. It's a great time to drop by a local nursery to find beautiful plants that can enhance your garden and reduce your water bill.



Smart landscaping saves water so we have plenty for all our household needs.

BANK ROBBERY

But the suspicious character had already caught the eye of another bank clerk, who walked out the door to a business next door and asked someone there to call police while the robbery was occurring, according to Poitras.

"He caught another employee's attention right away, and within a couple of seconds, the teller was handing him money," he said. "The sharp clerk noticed what was going on, and we were there within two minutes. But he was gone."

The suspect was last seen on foot heading southbound on Dolores and turning into the Adobe Inn.

"He disappeared somewhere in that complex — he may have cut through the underground parking garage — and he made good on his escape," Poitras said.

Police would not disclose how much money was stolen.

The suspect was described as a white male in his mid-20s, between 6 foot and 6 foot 2 inches tall with a thin build, weighing about 160 pounds. He was wearing a white T-shirt and possibly blue jeans. He had black or dark brown shoulder-length hair that was unkempt and greasy, possibly with some dreadlocks, the detective said.

According to Poitras, this robbery appears to have no links with another heist at Comerica Bank last September, during which an armed gunman escaped with more than $1,000 in cash.

CARMEL BEACH CLEANUP SLATED THIS SATURDAY

THE MONTHLY Carmel Beach Cleanup is set for 10 a.m. Saturday, May 26, so grab some gloves and do your part to keep Carmel Beach pristine and gloriously beautiful. Workers should meet at the foot of Ocean Avenue to fuel up on coffee and pastries, courtesy of Caffe Cardinale and the Carmel Bakery. For more information on the Carmel Residents Association, which holds the beach cleanup, visit the website at carmelresidents.org or call 624-3208.

BEAR

a wildlife specialist.

"Believe me, we will learn lessons from this," said fish and game Lt. Dave Fox.

He has already reviewed the incident with all personnel involved. Fox also plans a formal review with supervisors and upper management in the department within the next few days.

"We all feel bad, of course," he said. "We're going to have to meet on this and look at what can be changed or what could be done differently next time."

The bear was spotted early Wednesday in the north end of town. Wardens said it was likely the same animal seen raiding food tables at Laguna Seca last weekend, pawing through dumpsters at Foothill Elementary and Tarpy's Roadhouse earlier this week and foraging in Pebble Beach near Macomber Estates in the early hours of May 23. After several calls to 911, Carmel police located the bear and followed it yard to yard from Lincoln and Fourth to Ocean and Casanova Avenue.

The bear then turned and ran down Ocean Avenue before scrambling up a 70-foot-tall Monterey pine, where it perched and rested for hours, avoiding the buzz below.

By 9 a.m., emergency vehicles, police officers, sheriff's deputies, fire and forestry personnel, PG&E workers, fish and game wardens, members of the press and curious onlookers had gathered and likely frightened the bear, causing it to climb higher in the tree, Fox said.

Rather than trying to lure the bear from the tree or waiting to see if it would eventually come down, Fox said he decided to have the fish and game biologist Jeff Cann hit the bear with a tranquilizer dart.

They hoped it wouldn't fall, but would simply lose consciousness in its perch. They then planned to hoist the sleeping animal with the help of tree climbers, a cherry-picker and a crane.

"I felt comfortable that the bear could be darted in the tree and that there were enough branches that he would have stayed put," Fox said. "And that with the resources, like the tree climbers being offered by the city, we could get up there and get some harness equipment and lower him safely to the ground."

Fish and game biologist Jeff Cann, the agency's "darter," fired a single tranquilizer dart into the bear's flank. Unfortunately, the shot made the bear climb farther up the tree and moments later it fell into the yard of a home on Camino Real.

But after the bear was struck with the dart, it reacted with a grunt and lurched even further up the tree onto a branch with little support.

When the muscle relaxant took effect minutes later, the bear fell 70 feet into the yard of a house below.

"There's always one variable that could happen — that he could lose footing, not stay in the tree and fall out — that was the worst-case scenario, and that's what happened," Fox said.

Numerous citizens voiced their dismay at fish and game's decision to act. Barbara Brooks, chair of the city's wildlife committee, watched the bear amble across her back patio earlier that morning and later said she thought the decision to tranquilize was too hasty.

"It's really a bad thing that they have done," she said, acknowledging that officials were probably concerned about public safety. "But I don't think a sleeping bear in a tree was going to hurt anybody."

A woman, Christine Hyland, called The Pine Cone to criticize fish and game for not at least delaying the tranquilizer shot until dark. "There were many hours of daylight left," she said.

"I'm not going to say I know all the answers and can guarantee that I know what will happen with a wild animal at any given time," Fox said. "I take full responsibility for it. The city and even the press wanted this to go well — all of us were probably over-eager to help and wanted a successful conclusion, and that probably led to a decision to act too soon.

"Most people said, 'Why didn't you just wait?' That was an option, but we decided not to wait," he continued. "We decided to take action and that action proved to be fatal to the bear."

An element of that decision was the possible impact on the town and its residents and businesses, according to Fox. Power was cut on four blocks while the bear was in the tree, and several blocks would have been closed, perhaps for many more hours.

In retrospect, Fox said they probably should have waited — which would have meant clearing the entire area — even if it meant inconveniencing people.

"It's hard to say how much distraction the bear would tolerate before he would come down — every bear is probably different — but with all the activity there and even the normal daytime activity in Carmel, we would have had to block Ocean Avenue and several other blocks," he explained. "Bears can smell and hear very well, and we would have had to make sure there was no activity in the area. We even would have had to stay out ourselves and watch with binoculars."

As for placing bait at the foot of the tree, Fox said, "It probably wouldn't have hurt, but it's hard to say whether it would have helped."

"We were trying to do what was best for the bear, and were also concerned about public safety and the community," he said. "Obviously, we couldn't have left him there and walked away — he still would have been in town, which was not the proper place for a bear."

After hitting the ground with great force, the bear was immediately examined and secured by wildlife officials. It was still breathing when loaded onto a gurney, but died soon after.

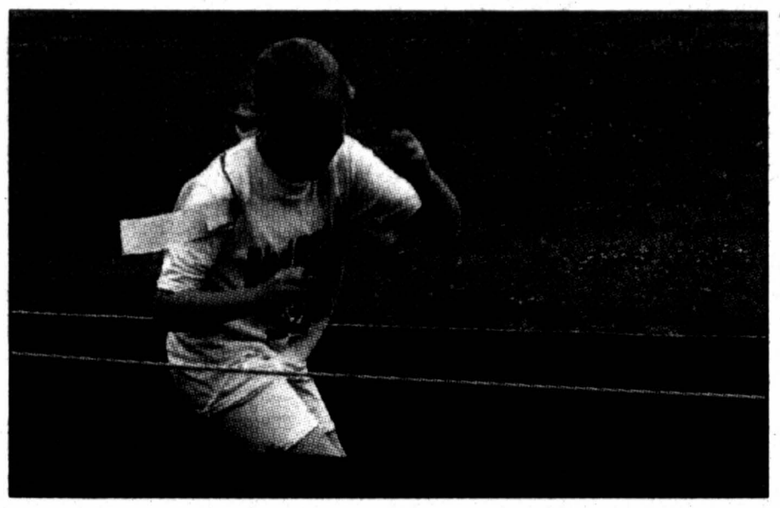
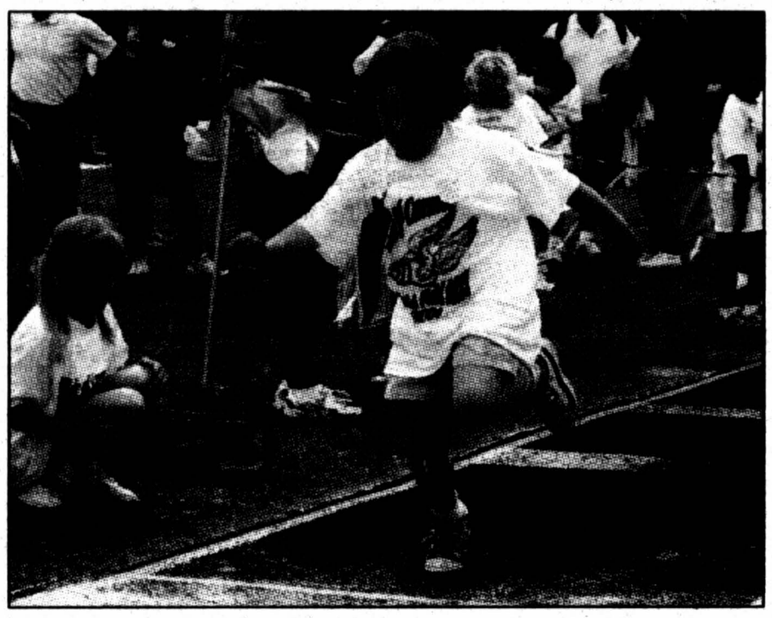
CARMEL KIDS ENJOY SHOWING THEIR GRIT AND DETERMINATION





300 compete in jumping, racing and throwing events

Story and photos by PAUL MILLER

THE SKIES may have been gloomy, but more than 300 kids with sunny faces hit the athletic field at Carmel High Sunday for the fifth annual Kids of Carmel Track Meet.

According to organizer Jay Marden, principal of Captain Cooper School, the day's outstanding performances were turned in by All Saints Fourth grader Camille Littlefield — who won the 100- and 400-meter dashes and finished third in the 200-meter dash — and by Tularcitos Fifth grader Derek Hartford — who took the top spot in the javelin, the long jump and the 200-meter dash.

But nearly all the participants, Marden added — from seven elementary schools in Big Sur, Carmel and Carmel Valley — showed an amazing amount of determination, win or lose. River School students Jay Louis (top right) and Victoria Howe (top left) and Big Sur home schooler Josh Babrowski (far left) confronted the high-jump bar with absolute certainty written on their faces that they would make it. Andrew Melendrez of Robert Louis Stevenson School and Madison Calder of River School (top, center) were neck-and-neck at the finish line in the 200-meter dash. Josie Odello, also of River School (left) used her tongue to gain extra momentum for the long jump.

from commenting on details of the option contract or the subsequent sale for $28 million.

"I would like to say, however, that this was purely a private deal and had nothing to do with the Pebble Beach Company or my position there," Perocchi said.

His boss, Peter Ueberroth, confirmed that Perocchi's gold strike was strictly private. "He reviewed it with us when he went into the deal, and there was nothing ethically or administratively wrong with it," Ueberroth told The Pine Cone. "We congratulated him on his good fortune."

Perocchi's $13 million profit came after Mitchell Group real estate agent Mike Canning helped arranged a lease in April 2000 for Perocchi, newly arrived in Pebble Beach with his wife and two children, for an oceanfront home a few steps from The Lodge. The deal also included an option to buy the home within two years from the family of its long-time owner, Dorothy Devlin.

"At the time, the all-time record price for a home in Pebble Beach was $15.7 million," Canning said, "and that was for a much bigger property. There was no doubt in my mind that $15 million represented a fair market price for the Devlin home at the time."

It also represented a huge fortune for the Devlins, considering that Mrs. Devlin and her husband, Arthur, bought the home in 1952 for $65,000, according to records at the Monterey County Courthouse. Their son, Robert T. Devlin of San Francisco, confirmed to The Pine Cone that he had no problem with the $15 million price when he negotiated it, and he declined to comment further for this story.

Mrs. Devlin died early this year. According to sources familiar with the transaction, Perocchi was then notified that he would have to exercise his option within 60 days or move out.

By that time, the $15 million price tag had been transformed from an obstacle into an opportunity. Another 17 Mile Drive home just up the street had sold to Gregpenn Realty in the summer of 2000 for $23.5 million.

"In my career, I have never seen such a sudden increase in prices for front-line homes," Canning said.

"Two years ago, I was afraid I'd be forced to buy at the top of the market — but the opposite happened," Perocchi commented. "It turned out I was in exactly the right place at just the right time." Despite the crash in tech stocks, he negotiated his own deal with a Silicon Valley partnership to sell the home — which includes a main house, a guest house and a caretaker's residence, along with a sweeping lawn down to the water's edge and a private beach — for $28 million.

The partnership that bought the home is reportedly headed by the CEO of a major software firm. Neither Perocchi nor officials with Old Republic Title, which handled the escrow for the Feb. 16 sale, would confirm his identity. Whoever he is, he'll be paying property taxes of about $310,000 per year. That'll make the government happy: Thanks to Prop. 13, before the sale, the annual property tax bill was just $4,500. Uncle Sam will take home a nice paycheck, too, since the profit on the two-day ownership would be taxed at the highest ordinary income rates, a tax expert said.

Conservatory does double dose of Shakespeare

The Performing Arts Conservatory of Carmel (PACC), led by John Farmanesh-Bocca, concludes its spring student project this weekend, staging two Shakespearean tragedies: "Othello" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Each play will be performed concert style — in 90 minutes with no intermission.

The performances are co-sponsored by Pacific Repertory Theatre at the Circle Theatre of the Golden Bough, located on Casanova between Eighth and Ninth avenues, Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"Othello" features Vinny Cardinale as the villainous Iago. Curtis August plays the victim of Iago's schemes in the title role. August, who also co-wrote PACC's multimedia show, "Karm-Hell," was recently accepted by Harvard's American Repertory Theatre training program.

Monica Hunken, who will enter New York University's Experimental Theatre Wing this fall, portrays the plot-revealing maid, Emilia.

The title roles in "Romeo and Juliet" are double-cast. Anna Greenfield and Jessie Beckett share the role of Juliet, and Alex Mar and Camron Robertson both play Romeo.

Tickets are $15 general, $8 for students/seniors and $5 for children under 12. For reservations, call 622-0100.

HOSPICE FOUNDATION BALL SHIMMERS IN MOONLIGHT

Pine Needles

By Sissi Maleki

MY DEAR Fellow Packrats:

Remember that rule sanctimonious minimalists always throw in our face:

"If you haven't used it in a year, throw it out . . . " ?

Well, ignore the rule. And trash the guilt.

And lest you hesitate to do so, listen to this bitter tale:

There once was a packrat who masqueraded as a froufrou columnist in the village of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

One day, this packrat was rushing between a friend's barbecue and a reception that was almost over I had yet to cover.

She parked her car on Ocean Avenue, grabbed her lipstick, looked into her rear-view mirror . . . and freaked.

There were poppy seeds in every visible nook and cranny of her God-given teeth! And there was no time to waste!

But she quickly calmed down. You see, she always carried in the car every conceivable emergency travel item — mini fork & knife, collapsible hairbrush, soap, compass, toolkit . . . and, naturally, dental floss!

Smugly, she opened the glove compartment. And her smugness vanished.

She grimly recalled that a month ago, after six years of never using any of that stuff, she had bitten the bullet and gotten rid of it.

Gotten rid of the floss.

Only some tiny scissors were left. By accident.

She soon found that no lingual gymnastics or sucking techniques were able to nudge the last few seeds out of their makeshift pods.

One can only imagine what the passing tourists thought, catching sight of this female digging in her own mouth.

She tried using pieces of paper like floss. Didn't work.

She tried — after praying for minimal injury — using the tip of the scissors as a toothpick.

No luck.

She finally had to accept her fate — looking like a pirate reject for the next whole hour.

The Hospice Ball was filled with elegant beauties such as Melanie Nicora, Mindy Busch and Cynthia House.

THE 13TH Hospice Foundation Ball, "Moonlight Magic" drew the crème-de-la-crème crowd — May 18 to the Inn at Spanish Bay.

Event committee member Paula Lotz was one of those who greeted arriving guests and chatted with them a bit.

Ronnie & Ollie Nutt had the opportunity to catch up with good friends Dan & Vonda Tibbits.

Jane Evans was flying high that evening, have just broken 100 on the golf course. She said she and hubby John had spent the winter at their new home in Indian Wells.

Linda McKee had accompanied the Hospice's godmother-of sorts, board member emeritus Helen Westland.

Lavina & Glenn Stinson are giving up their home here and sticking to Palm Springs for getaways from their base in Ligonier, Pennsylvania.

Jackie Edwards, who has two sons, is known to happily "adopt" the daughters of her friends.

She was keeping company this evening with Amy & Michael McAfee and Julie Conners and sharing the McAfees' excitement at their new Jack Russell puppy.

Dr. Alan Rosenthal was with his lovely wife Annely who's a volunteer at Redwings Horse Sanctuary.

"Willa Aylaian, owner of Whittaker's in Carmel and a painter, had just held a champagne reception at her store for her new artworks.

Penny Vieregge was one of the new Big Sur Health Center board members who attended the center's fundraiser.

A winner in the elegance department — which was hard enough to judge, given the crowd! — was Cynthia House, Dina Eastwood's right hand.

CHOMP's chief Steve Packer, keeps busy with his two boys, Joel, 13, and Matt, 10, when he's not working. He and his wife Ann go on regular family trips.

Sidney Morse has a daughter, Lindsay, who hung out with Judge Susan Dauphine's son, David, when both were 3 years old. Now Lindsay is an exec with Yahoo and David has just gone back to Stanford.

Other guests included Teresa & Greg Kraft, John & Jane Evans and Melanie Nicora.

■ Ventana hosts health center's big bash

It was time for the annual Party for Health, benefiting the Big Sur Health Center, at Ventana's Cielo restaurant on May 9.

Board president Anne Ashley stated that by enlarging the board, individuals with sterling business knowledge were brought in.

"It's a remarkable group," she said of the board.

New board member Penny Vieregge, attending with hubby Paul, helped found the center and worked there in its early days. Now she fills in occasionally.

Anne Ashley's hubby John Alvord bragged about finally having gotten a computer ISDN line out to where they live. Realtor Lisa Poe & hubby Mark, a contractor, spend most of their time in Big Sur, except for occasional trips into town, playing tourist.

Mark is currently building bath houses for Esalen so, as Lisa pointed out, "We're tied up here for a while!"

New board member Jerry Burleson still works in San Jose in mergers & acquisitions, though he lives in Carmel. "But a lot of my friends live in Big Sur," he said.

Nurse Debra West's husband Bruce writes a national medical newsletter. They're all friends of the Kronlands, with whom they regularly play volleyball on Carmel beach.

Michele Blaney is Ventana's "lifestyle coordinator," which — in case you're wondering — gets to handle guests as VIPs. (All guests are VIPs!) She was modeling one of the outfits donated for the auction by Ventana's boutique.

Carolee Cross, a local realtor, joked she's "just a newcomer — only 15 years in the community." Her hubby Robert, though, has 30 years under his belt!

New board member Ann Morse came with her significant other, Bill Burleigh.

Other guests included Debra Stoller, Christina Jendrs and Linda Mazet.

John Adair looked over the multitude of auction items to bid on while wife Marlene chatted about her family.

Club of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

But this was no ordinary show.

Stunning flower arrangements highlighted the awesome talents of local club members and it was easy to see how the club qualified to belong to the Garden Club of America.

Jody Clark was beaming after winning first prize in the "Color Wheel" flower arrangement category and Best of Show. Though she credited fellow club member Pam Smith as her "arranging mentor," the story her husband Marten told proved the achievement was no small feat.

"For two weeks she kept trying different arrangements until she finally settled on that design," he recalled. "I can't believe the time that goes into these things!"

Vicki Mitchell recalled running into Jody during this period.

"I saw her at Whole Foods practically every week walking out with tons of flowers in her arms!" she said, still bemused.

Donna Woods and Char Allen came to the Garden Show not as gardeners, but just to enjoy it all.

Jody's design, by the way, consisted of square terracotta containers placed on top of each other in a way that left exposed corners holding orange and yellow roses and pincushion proteas.

"I got the tedious job to get it over here," he continued, grimacing, "but when we take it home, it's definitely coming in pieces!"

Others there included Pamela Green, Carol Henderson and Barbara Tuffli, a clerk.

And what's a clerk, you may ask?

"You get to write down all the comments the judges make," Barbara explained.

Donna Woods hung out with friend Char Allen, chatting about Char's son, Realtor Tim Allen. There's no flower gardening for these two ladies.

"All I do is cut dead things!" Donna said. "My husband Roy is the gardener."

And Char's into horse farming, with her place in Watsonville.

Mary Whisler checked out her winning piece of art, a photo of tulips taken at Filoli Gardens. She claimed she's "just into horticulture," and not the fancy flower arranging.

But isn't it more of a challenge to keep flowers going?

"Well, yes," she admitted, smiling, "that is hard sometimes!"

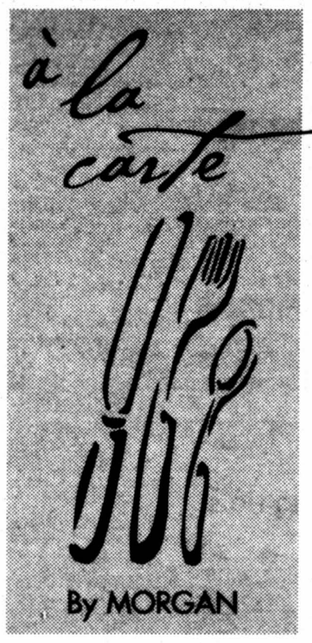
LIGHT STREAMS in from rectangular, deep-reveal skylights, falls across clean-lined Mexican ranch house chairs with wide, woven seats, and dapples white adobe-like walls and tablecloths. A half-moon cut-out in one wall allows the diner to voyeuristically look through to others in a smaller, more intimate room.

This is the spacious, cool interior of a many-roomed stone hacienda surrounded by greenery and flowers, a patio with umbrellas, and a covered porch — all hand-built by Charles Ryan in 1924 — now known as Tarpy's Roadhouse.

This is a restaurant frequented enthusiastically by locals who come for lunch or for dinner, or for the large bar — for the amenable surroundings and good service — but most particularly for the innovative menu and its stylish preparation by executive chef Michael Kimmel and his kitchen staff. Kimmel is a partner and part owner, along with Tony Tollner, operations manager, and Bill Cox, the major partner, and comes from a background of the CIA Hyde Park, New York, with seven years of restaurant experience in Manhattan.

We have lunched and dined at Tarpy's often, and each time have found a thriving business. And is it any wonder? Where else can you order a starter of lobster, shrimp and mango salad in three fragile cones made of Moroccan brick dough (like a thicker phyllo) from Paris, topped delicately with crème fraîche and red Flying Fish caviar ($13.95)? Or half a dozen Chesapeake Bay oysters, raw on the half shell or broiled in a lemon-thyme beurre blanc ($9.99)?



Kimmel says the core menu is composed of such favorites as grilled prime rib of pork with bourbon-molasses glaze, braised apples, red cabbage and apple butter ($15.95); smoky barbecue St. Louis ribs with corn on the cob and fries (half for $12.95, full for $19.95); prime fillet of beef in balsamic-port wine reduction with asparagus ($29.95) .

But chile-crusted chicken breast with apricot barbecue sauce and Gruyère scalloped potatoes ($15.40) sells the most, Kimmel said, and "we're known for our fresh seafood, wild game and the best beef in the county."

On a recent luncheon visit, we enjoyed a grilled blue nose sea bass with a mango jicama salsa and soy-lemon ginger glaze on oriental noodles ($16.95). Acclaimed for his original salsa recipes, Chef Kimmel said this one is composed of peeled, diced mango and jicama mixed with lime and lemon juices, cilantro, chilies, garlic, green onion, olive oil and salt and pepper.

All of the steaks at Tarpy's are prime — New York ($24.95), filet of beef ($29.95) and flat iron ($16.95).

We ordered the grilled flatiron steak with lime-ginger teriyaki on roasted garlic whipped potatoes recently because we find flatiron steaks to be very tasty and with a little heft (unlike those namby-pamby petit filet mignon so tender you can cut them with a fork). The flatiron is prepared over a woodburning grill. "We burn almond wood brought in from San Jose," Chef Kimmel said. "It burns a little hotter and cleaner than oak."

Known for its fresh game, Tarpy's kitchen rotates its choices weekly: Ostrich from Watsonville, California-raised pheasant, New Zealand venison rack, filet of wild boar and filet of moose. At a recent food and wine writers luncheon at Tarpy's we snagged a forkful of wild boar from an acquiescent writer before he devoured the whole filet. One bite was enough for Morgan, but the luncheon companion was so pleased with its gamy, big flavor, he said he would order it again next time he dines at Tarpy's.

Prices quoted in this column are dinner prices. Many of these items served at lunch are $3 to $7 less, but some items remain the same price for lunch as for dinner.

A dessert list of seven items ($4.95 to $6.25) are all comfort foods that will take you in reverie back to Mom's kitchen when you were a child.

An excellent wine list, selected by wine director Jennifer Fantillo, offers half bottles and full — $15 to $240.

With our flatiron steak we enjoyed a very big and luscious Deakin 2000 Shiraz, from Australia: Dry, full of fruit and with a lingering finish, it is available by the glass for $6.95.

Lunching or dining on the 120-seat patio is a pure delight — tinged with a frisson as planes, coming in for a landing at nearby Monterey airport, cast a momentary shadow flying low overhead. There are eight dining rooms in the roadhouse, including the downstairs indoor rooms which seat 150, and a banquet room with its own terrace upstairs that seats 80.

Innovation and attentive preparation are the watchwords of Michael Kimmel's kitchen. He is aided there by accomplished sous chefs Juan Ponce, Andres Diaz, and Gabriel Arguelles. Treat yourself to a sunny luncheon or a fireplace dinner at Tarpy's Roadhouse soon.

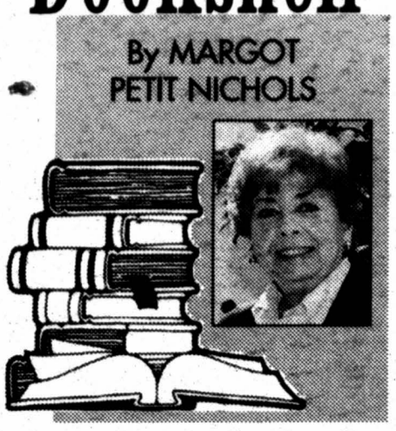
Local writers explore alternative paths to healing

The Bookshelf

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS



LYNNE PICARD'S "The Elephant's Rope and the Untethered Spirit — A Remarkable True Story of Healing and Hope" encourages the reader to question and to seek avenues outside the ordinary while at the same time searching out and accepting the best of conventional help when serious medical conditions arise.

The author, who now resides in Pebble Beach, has lived for extended periods in Japan, India, Hong Kong and France and has experienced natural healing through mind/body/spiritual explorations and practices.

An emotional and physical roller coaster of illness, remission and reoccurrence of cancer treated with chemotherapy and surgery bought Picard the time she needed to come upon alternate paths that finally brought her to accept positive energy, and with it, healing.

It is a story perhaps you have read elsewhere, through others in the celebrity world who have pursued like paths, but this is the story of a woman, a mother, a wife who grew up in the Bay Area, graduated from the University of California at Berkeley in art history and pursued interests in publishing, design, medical research and private education. Her will to live, to not leave her husband and three children, and her openness to alternate paths is a fascinating story to read.

Picard acknowledges the debt she owes to conventional medical treatment. She says, "The allopathic medical experts, thank heaven, knew enough to help me buy the time in which to find my way, and for that I was and am extremely grateful."

The book takes the reader on Picard's private journey as she seeks out unconventional paths through mediums, shamen, her guardian angel — her grandmother — Reiki masters, vibration and prayer, to name a few.

"At the very least, the large initial task we have to accomplish is to free ourselves from negative thoughts, from patterns in life which harm us, and from limiting expectations, which hold us hostage. This is an enormous undertaking, vitally empowering for the healer within," Picard says in this book in which the author's sincerity and belief emerge with great clarity.

Picard now conducts a full healing practice of her own.

This slim hardcover volume of 114 pages is produced by Robert D. Reed Publishers, 750 La Playa, San Francisco and retails for $19.95.

You can meet and talk with Lynne Picard at a book-signing from 3:30 to 5 p.m., Sunday, May 27 at The Thunderbird Bookshop. For information, call 624-1803.

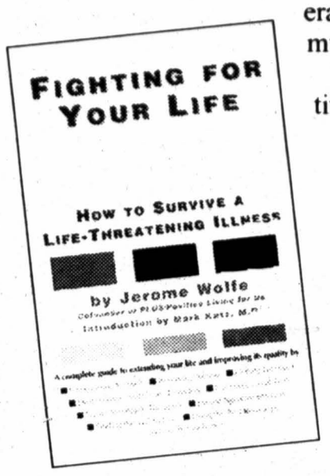
COINCIDENTALLY, A book by a local author from Marina, Jerome Wolfe, "Fighting for Your Life — How to Survive a Life-Threatening Illness," confronts the same topic. This book, too, covers "empowering yourself, reversing disease, dealing with health care providers and erasing negative emotions," and much more.



Wolfe reviews such alternative therapies as oriental medicines, special diets, homeopathy, chiropractic, naturopathy, hatha yoga, tai-chi and the martial arts, breathing techniques, laughter and yogic breathing techniques.

The book is well written and does great service to those looking for a guide to exploring options available to all. The author was a Shanti Foundation volunteer for years and con-

"A IS for America" — written by Devin Scillian and illustrated by local artist Pam Carroll — is a wonderfully instructive and brightly illustrated alphabet book for children. From B is for British and our constitution that replaced their rule, to Yellowstone and Zane Grey's stories of the west, "A is for America" has text written in verse that will stay with young readers for a long time.

A booksigning will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 26 at Hauk Fine Art, 206 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove. Meet illustrator Carroll, whose work is displayed at the gallery, and who is a Carmel Art Association member.

The full color hardcover retails for $22.95 and is published by Sleeping Bear Press, Chelsea, MI.

"THE UMPTEENTH Annual Book and Bake Sale" is again being put on by Friends of the Big Sur Library. For three days running, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., thousands of hardcovers, paperbacks and children's books for "tiny prices, as well as choice rarities from a recent acquisition" will be for sale on the lawn of the library (next to Ripplewood on Highway 1). The dates are Saturday through Monday, May 26 through 28. Big Sur master bakers will have their wares on sale, too.

ED MITCHELL, Salinas author of the mystery thriller, "Gold Lust," will appear at a booksigning from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday and Sunday, May 26 and 27 at Books, Inc., on the lower level of Carmel Plaza, Ocean at Mission, Carmel-by-the-Sea. The book, which tells the tale of a Central Coast family caught up in discovering the eastern branch of the California motherlode, incorporates spy satellites, gene manipulation and corporate hostile takeovers. For information, call Books Inc. at 625-0440.

THE COHORTS, "a loose band of merry minstrels," will perform poetry, skits and other readers as well as showcasing paintings and video works from 3 to 5 p.m., Sunday, May 27 at The Henry Miller Library, Highway 1, Big Sur. These warriors of words will also compose spontaneous poetry based on audience suggestions. Come early. This is the fourth year these friends from L.A. and S.F. have met in Big Sur to perform free. For information, call 667-2574.

Plants in paradise: Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club joins La Mirada

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A HUMMINGBIRD banquet. As in, a veritable creme de la creme of flowers, delicious to even the most finicky of the species.

That was one of many challenges presented to the 56 members of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club flower show at the Monterey Museum of Art's fundraiser, "Springtime at La Mirada," this month.

Garden club members were invited to compete in several categories as part of the event — the first ever collaborative effort between the museum and the garden club. Members were asked to arrange flowers to complement one of six paintings displayed at the museum, create floral arrangements using the color wheel, exercise their horticultural abilities by growing various plants, develop arrangements serving as edible art, design windowsill gardens, or grow and care for a deer fern as part of a challenge class in which members all grew the same variety of plant, according to club member Jan White.

A panel of three Garden Club of America-affiliated judges selected winners in each category after prejudging all 80-plus entries to make sure they were correctly labeled, free of pests and disease, and right for the class, according to White.

Carol Sullivan won Best in Show at "Springtime at La Mirada" for her Bonsai tree.

Master floral arrangers from outside the club were also invited to create special pieces for the show.

"They were given flowers and a few decorative items and were asked to independently come up with an arrangement," White said. "We had six very different arrangements."

Throughout the weekend, members of the public were invited to wander through the arrangements and horticultural masterpieces at La Mirada, sample catered goodies and purchase items for their own gardens.

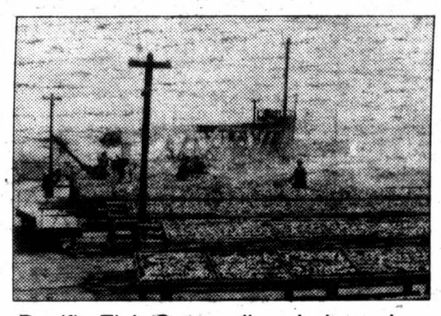
Time Out

MONTEREY -- Cannery Row at 99. That's right; if you've missed the word so far, you can dial it in now. Almost one hundred years ago (1902), Otosaburo Noda put his business development apparatus to work on the vacant, rocky slope above the coast between the Presidio and China Point. This unsung Japanese entrepreneur had already helped locate and establish the Japanese abalone diving and canning operation at Point Lobos, where in the late 1890s, the delicacy–then unknown and unappreciated by American tastes–was canned and shipped back across the Pacific. We don't know a lot about the details, but historians such as Sandy Lydon of Cabrillo College and Curt Loesch of the Point Lobos historical society are hopefully close to filling in a lot of the gaps.



Pacific Fish Co. sardine drying prior to "French frying." Circa 1911.

What's this got to do with Cannery Row? Well, it seems that this enterprising Japanese business pioneer erected a crude canning shed on the rocky shore--between what is now the El Torito Mexican Restaurant and the Chart House–to can salmon and abalone. It might be suspected that the Japanese may have found it hard to compete successfully for fair prices with American fish buyers who were just in the process of launching a canning effort in the harbor at Monterey. Whatever the reason, it was apparently the Japanese who first ventured into canning on what is now Cannery Row. This first venture, the Monterey Fishing and Canning Company, would struggle until bought out in 1907 and become the Pacific Fish Company. In the twenties it became the California Packing Corp ("Cal-Pac") Plant 101, a Del Monte packer. It is worthy to note that Noda also had a hand in the Rowís two full-scale Japanese canneries, Sea Pride and California Fisheries. Much of their production was exported to Japan and the Pacific.

Armed with awareness, the next time you walk down Cannery Row and pass the large vacant space between El Toritó and the Chart House, imagine what this street was like a hundred years ago. A vacant, boulder strewn slope to the craggy shoreline...with a shed at the Pacific's edge. On a wagon road at the time, as much as a "street." But as well all know, that was all going to change. And the marvelous thing is that all those ghosts are still there. Old pictures bring a whole other life alive that happened here, where today we shop and dine and enjoy the shore of the Sanctuary largely oblivious of the decades of changes that have shaped that point in time we know of as Cannery Row today.

Treat yourself to a quiet walk before lunch at one of the Rowís array of cafes and restaurants and let yourself feel how deep this place really goes. The more you know, of course, the deeper you can. Steinbeck wrote of only one fleeting slice of it. It was a lot before his genius absorbed and shaped it into one of Americaís greatest literary celebrations of a sense of place–and it continues to distill and evolve and enchant and make passionate those who can feel this very special place. Enjoy it. Itís not just a marketing slogan; it is "America's Most Famous Street."

OPINION

Editorial

Forest Theater — a true historic resource

WHILE THE lawsuits and rhetoric have flowed freely over the future of some of Carmel's old homes, preservationists have been largely silent about the future of the Forest Theater.

The theater, created in 1910 on what was then an unbuilt, forested hillside, is one of the city's foremost cultural institutions and ranks as one of its most historic structures. Any proposal to tear it down would be greeted with an outcry of Brobdingnagian proportions.

But even more important than the Forest Theater's stage, dressing rooms, fire pits and benches is its key role in the city's cultural heritage. This has been carried forward from generation to generation not by wood and metal, but by the talent, dedication and sheer hard work of men, women and youngsters who are devoted to the theatrical arts.

Their efforts should not go unheralded in the debate over noise and parking problems associated with nighttime productions at the theater. Every Carmelite owes a great debt to the people who plan, produce and perform in the numerous plays and musicals staged at theater every year.

Should they have carte blanche to do whatever they like? Obviously not. Should complaining neighbors be dragged, like Don Giovanni, down to Hades? That is hardly warranted.

But the protestations of a few nearby residents — all of whom bought their homes knowing full-well that a thriving theater was in the vicinity — should not be accorded greater credibility than the opinions of people like Walt de Faria, Hamish Tyler and Stephen Moorer, who have carried the city's theatrical traditions on their shoulders through thick and thin for years. Everyone should strive in good faith toward solutions to any prolems at Forest Theater. But whenever there is no solution agreeable to everyone, the theater companies should get their way. They have earned it.

Real reason behind airport ordinance

Dear Editor:

Hallelujah! I commend The Pine Cone for the excellent article (May 18) questioning whether the Carmel Valley Airport poses a real threat to Tularcitos School.

As your story suggests, the safety of the school children is a red herring for the individual agendas of a handful of people. It is unfortunate that some well-meaning parents have been misled into believing that a great danger is posed by the airport, because it becomes an uphill battle for community supporters to explain all of the benefits provided by the airport when our children's safety is the apparent trade-off.

The airport officially opened as part of the Airway Ranch subdivision on December 7, 1941 (the same day Pearl Harbor was attacked) and received an operating permit from the State of California in 1949 (the state didn't issue permits prior to 1949). The School District broke ground on Tularcitos Elementary in 1950. There were plenty of sites in Carmel Valley in 1950, so it seems logical that the people who put Tularcitos to the side of the Carmel Valley Airport gave due consideration to the issue 50 years ago.

Furthermore, the number of operations at Carmel Valley has actually reduced considerably from its heyday in the forties and fifties when such famous people as Mary Pickford, Joan Fontaine, Laurence Olivier and Vivian Leigh flew into our humble airport. Federal airport statistics indicate that Carmel Valley currently has 1,600 operations a year. An "operation" is defined as a takeoff or landing. That works out to a daily average of 2.2 planes coming and going a day. As any resident of Carmel Valley Village can tell you, the overwhelming majority of planes operate on weekends and during the summer — when Tularcitos is not in session. Days go by where you wouldn't even know there was an airport there at all.

takes away the property owner's right to keep the airfield, it will be a loss to our community for reasons too long to list here, but suffice it to say that a slice of our history and the flavor of our village will be forever altered as we march further down the path to homogeneity. Your article on the Carmel Valley Airport has shed some light onto what is not the reason behind the airport's closing. I hope we see a future story on what is the real driving force behind this recent airport amortization ordinance.

Geoffrey M. Hand, Carmel Valley

Airport is a haven

Dear Editor:

Regarding the recent article in the Pine Cone about concerns for the Carmel Valley Airport, let's reflect another overview of its value. Here is a scenario that many a family has faced since the 1941 federally approved aviation field existed. The family I speak of are aboard an aircraft . . . they are late and Monterey and Salinas airports report obscure fog and haze. Their pilot vectors to Carmel Valley and lands safely. A phone call to Monterey — and when weather changes the aircraft departs the valley for a late return to Monterey and home.

Carmel Valley Airport — this safe, fine sanctuary — is often a haven for pilots of all caliber and serves all who seek it.

There is enough undeveloped land without self-serving Monterey County Supervisors and misguided school principals mouthing argumentative actions that are negative to aviation safety.

Think of all of the school children and families since 1941 who have attended these schools in question. They all went on to become fine citizens! Some even pilots!

As a retired naval aviator who finds a "small field" looking huge, after recalling carrier landings on small decks at sea, I would like to say that this field has served our cities, aviation and our nation for some 60 years. There is no threat of even double or tripling of air traffic in Carmel Valley.

Let's protect what we have and be thankful.

OXBRIDGE

Voskay had praise for the new owners.

"I'm sure our landlords will find quality tenants for this area," he said. "They care and have respect for the city."

Oxbridge's going-out-of-business sale ran into a problem with the city when the code enforcement officer discovered a liquidator, Patrick James, had brought merchandise into the store to be sold, which is a violation of city codes. But the problem was corrected by removing that merchandise, according to building and planning manager Chip Rerig.

Voskay, who grew up in Carmel Valley and has known the Talbott haberdashery family for years, won't be leaving town or changing his occupation.

"Everybody who liked to shop with me can still find me at Talbott's," just down the street, he said.

"Carmel Legends"

Long before the Barbie Doll and its successor, the Cabbage Patch orphan became the rage, a very special doll was born here in Carmel. It was created by MAYOTTA COMSTOCK, and it was made of rags. She called it OTSY-TOTSY, and soon Carmel visitors were buying Otsy-Totsies by the dozen. Mayotta was as productive as she was inventive, and before long Otsy-Totsies were overflowing her living room, bedroom and bath. Faced with this population explosion, her husband HUGH built her a fullsize dollhouse with arched doorway, leaded windows, a crooked chimney and exposed structural members, a fairyland cottage. Production continued apace, so HUGH built more cottages, and suddenly people wanted to buy them. The first few, in the mid-20's, sold for around $2500. Today they command perhaps 100 times that amount. You know the Tuck Box, a COMSTOCK creation; and there's a cluster of Comstocks around Torres and Sixth Street. All started by a little rag doll, OTSY-TOTSY.

THE CIRCUS ISN'T COMING TO TOWN

No, Pacific Grove's city hall isn't gift-wrapped for the Feast of Lanterns; it's trussed and bundled to contain the deadly gas pumped in to eliminate termites that have been eating the historic building.

"I knew there was something not quite right last winter when I'd have wiggly termites on my desk after every rainstorm," said P.G. City Manager Ross Hubbard. He said the contractors from DMC construction discovered the extent of the termite damage when they began to replace the roof on city hall.

The $2.2 million P.G. civic center project is expected to be finished by November.

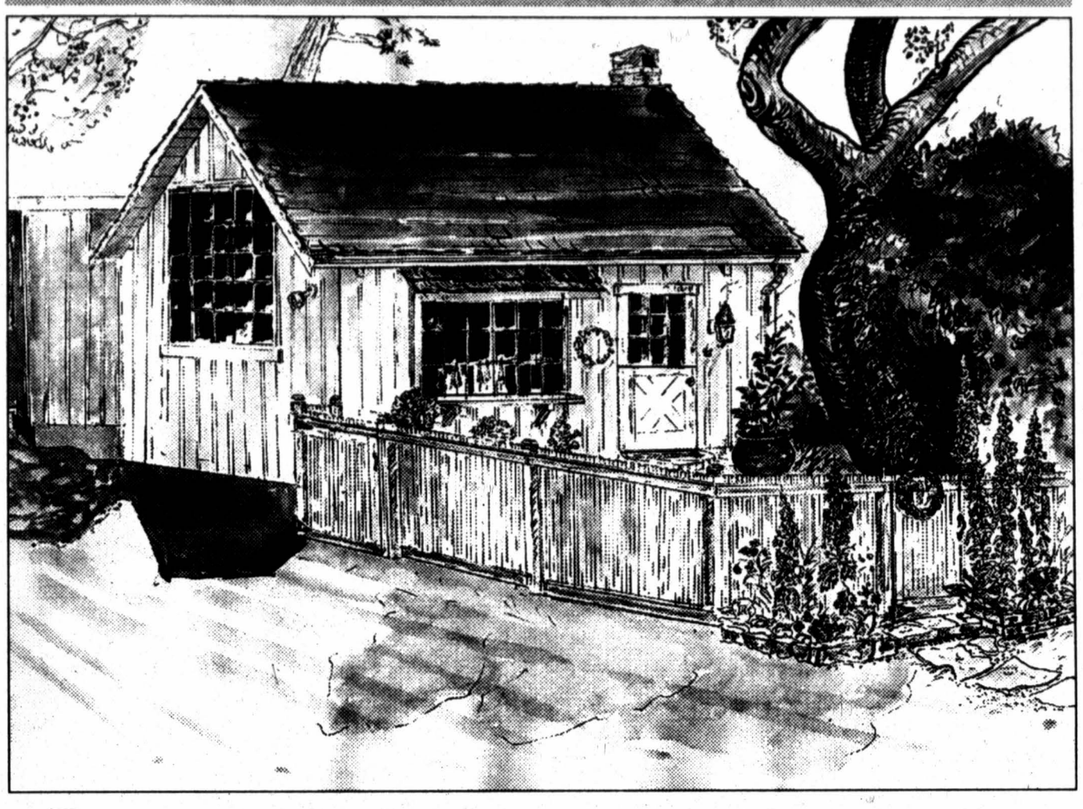
COTTAGE OF THE MONTH



THIS DELIGHTFUL Craftsman Cottage was once the studio for Leslie Emery, a local artist who was one of the past presidents of the Carmel Art Association.

Emery painted in the room that is now used as the living room and when the present owners pulled up the carpeting they found the paint-spattered concrete floor. There are several Emery paintings in the house even now.

The current owners added the sitting room area in the dining room, a master bedroom and bath and expanded storage. They managed to retain the unobtrusive charm of the original cottage as it sits tucked in on a pretty block of Camino Real, 4 NE of 11th.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: San Antonio resident reported hearing something on her roof. Area checked, nothing found.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver from Ontario, Canada, contacted and warned for driving the wrong way on Junipero.

Big Sur: Michigan resident was climbing a cliff with three friends at Hurricane Point when he became stranded about 500 feet below the highway. He was unable to move without risking a fall to the rocks, which were about 80-100 feet below him. He yelled out for help and his friends had climbed up the cliff from a different route and flagged down a passing sheriff's deputy. Sheriff's Search and Rescue, Big Sur Fire and CHP Helo responded. Rescuers hiked to a flat area about 400 feet below the highway and were able to rappel down to the victim. They secured him to a rope and then hoisted him up. He had been holding on for his life for about two hours until he was rescued. He was not injured.

Carmel Valley: Conducted a welfare check of an elderly El Hemorro resident after her daughter was unable to make contact with her over the weekend. She was okay. She was having unknown problems with her phone.

Carmel Valley: Unknown person(s) vandalized the play area of the Child Development Center on Carmel Valley Road.

Carmel area: Monte Verde resident reported that debris from her neighbor's roof blew into her yard.

Carmel Valley: Complaint of loud noise from an upstairs Village Drive neighbor.

Carmel Valley: Paso Hondo resident reported a suspicious phone call.

Carmel area: Via Carmelita resident reported that her 15-year-old daughter ran away from home.

Big Sur: State employee housing resident wanted someone to tell her if she had the right to open her husband's mail since he had told her it was a federal offense. Referred her to the post office.

Carmel area: Carmel High School student reported someone took her black purse from a classroom.

TUESDAY, MAY 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Cleaned up debris thrown on the roadway at Santa Lucia and San Carlos. Unable to determine where the garbage came from other than that it was thrown from a vehicle.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver stopped for following another vehicle too closely. Driver counseled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man reported losing his United

Airlines tickets somewhere in the business district.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported two incidents during which someone she knows may have intentionally failed to yield to her when she was a pedestrian at Monte Verde and 15th, near Carmel River School. Advised to contact the sheriff's office, considering the location of the incidents.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject came to the station to report someone had called him on his cell phone an additional two times since it was first reported. The calls were not so much threatening this time as annoying. Advised the officer would talk to the caller in person and impress upon him the need for these calls to stop. Further advised the subject to document the dates and times of the calls so that a report could be written against the suspect if it continues.

Carmel area: Eastfield Place resident reported his house was entered and jewelry taken.

Carmel area: Ribera Road resident reported three tires were slashed on each of his vehicles. He suspects his son's ex-girlfriend.

The place to be SURE, YOU'VE got the "big trip" planned to Disneyworld, New York or Mongolia.

But with the kids out of school for the whole summer, you've got to come up with more than just a two-week family vacation to keep them from getting bored or, worse yet, hosting all their friends for a month-long TV and computer game marathon.

Many families sprinkle their summers with short trips to nearby vacation spots, but with rolling blackouts threatening to turn any California trip into a mini-version of "Survivor," the best advice this year seems to be "STAY HOME" — where the Peninsula's natural air conditioning blesses everyone with the power to keep their cool during the energy crisis.

Do you doubt that there's enough to do in Carmel, Pacific Grove, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and Monterey to keep the whole family happy for three months? The following pages will show just how wrong you are.

Forest Theater Guild stages "Kiss Me Kate," "Annie Get Your Gun"

ANGELS IN THE OUTFIELD

June 1

Another film favorite, "The Sandlot," will be shown at Carmel Youth Baseball's Angels in the Outfield benefit June 1, courtesy of the Lions Club. The film will follow the giveaway of 17 luxury prizes, for which 4,000 tickets are being sold in an effort to raise $70,000 towards new equipment and the eventual construction of a new baseball diamond at Larson Field for CYB. The film will be shown on the Pony baseball field at Carmel Middle School at dusk, and the $5 admission includes a barbecue, games and the film.

Summer offerings of the historic Forest Theater Guild in Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater are two classic musicals, "Kiss Me Kate," which plays weekends through June 18; and "Annie Get Your Gun," presented weekends from June 22 through July 29.

For information or reservations, call the Forest Theater Guild, 626-1681.

Pacific Repertory Theatre offers summer of varied productions

The Central Coast premiere of Patrick Marber's "Closer," a play about love, desire, sex, jealousy and guilt as seen through the lives of four characters who converge in a demented sexual square dance plays June 15 through Aug. 1 at the Circle Theatre, Carmel. No one under age 16 will be admitted to this production.

Apollo and Olympia Dukakis co-star in the Pacific Repertory Theatre staging of "The Cherry Orchard," a comedy in four acts by Anton Chekhov. Presented July 13 to Aug. 5 in the Golden Bough Theatre (Monte Verde between Eighth and Ninth, Carmel), this new adaptation is by Louis Zorich and Apollo Dukakis.

Royal intrigues pervade a trio of Pacific Repertory Theatre offerings starting with the American professional premiere of "Edward III" by William Shakespeare, set for Aug. 10 through Oct. 14 in the Circle Theatre. Yet another American professional premiere bows Sept. 7 through Oct. 14 with Pac Rep's "Thomas of Woodstock," a play written anonymously in the early 1590s, to be presented in the Golden Bough Theatre. Shakespeare's own "Richard II" will be presented in the Outdoor Forest Theater Sept. 28 to Oct. 14.

And by popular demand, PacRep is bringing back the musical version of "Peter Pan" from Sept. 28 to Oct. 14, again in the Outdoor Forest Theater.

Pac Rep ticket prices range from $18 to $35; senior single ticket prices are $15 to $25 and student single ticket prices are $9 to $18. Children under 12 are admitted for $5 to all performances.

To make reservations, call the box office, 622-0100; or visit the website: www.pacrep.org

PEBBLE BEACH

51st CONCOURS d'ELEGANCE

August 19, 2001

The Lodge at Pebble Beach

They don't call it "elegant" for nothing! This event, which sprawls over the 18th Fairway and Pebble Beach, draws wealthy international car collectors and has become one of the world's premier automobile events – where achieving "Best of Show" is something every classic car owner dreams of. This year's featured cars will be vintage Bentleys and a collection of Mercedes to honor that name's 100th anniversary. Tickets this year are $100, with proceeds going to United Way of the Monterey Peninsula. Can't afford the price of admission? On Wednesday, August 15, many of the cars on exhibit at the Concours d'Elegance will tour the Monterey Peninsula, including Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and Carmel Valley before returning to Pebble Beach.

For ticket information, call 659-0663.
